NRHA Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program Graduates continue to lead and learn as NRHA Rural Health Fellows

[Kansas City, Mo.] – The National Rural Health Association has recently announced their final selections for the new class of Rural Health Fellows.

Following a rigorous and competitive selection process, 17 fellows were chosen to take part in this rigorous one-year program designed to cultivate leaders capable of articulating a compelling and distinct vision for rural America. Two of those fellows are graduates of the NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program.

NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program and the Center for Rural Health Leadership are proud to recognize these participants.

The 2024 Rural Health Fellows are:

- Kimberly Haverly, graduate of NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program, February 2022 Cohort: CEO at Carroll County Memorial Hospital, Carrollton, Ky.
- Brian Williams, graduate of NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program, February 2020 Cohort: CEO at Winner Regional Healthcare, Winner, S.D.

About NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program: NRHA's Rural Hospital CEO Certification Program was developed by successful rural hospital CEOs for rural hospital CEOs to help them strengthen their leadership skills and lead their hospital to success. An individual with this certification will immediately be recognized as someone qualified to lead a rural hospital with excellence. The Center for Rural Health Leadership facilitates NRHA's Rural Hospital Certification Programs.
