Factors contributing to greater behavioral health challenges in rural America:

- Lack of access to treatment options
- Behavioral health workforce shortages
- Greater sense of stigma
- Longer distances and fewer transportation options
- Higher rates of under- or un-insurance
- Approximately 7.7 million rural adults (23%) report having any mental illness in 2023.
- In 2021, the suicide rate in rural communities was between 18.3 and 20.5 per 100,000 residents, compared to large urban communities where the rate was between 10.9 and 12.5 per 100,000.
- The rate of deaths in rural counties was 31% higher than in urban counties of one type of opioid and 13% higher in rural counties for a second subset of opioids (natural and semisynthetic opioids).
- 62% of the US counties with the highest rates of OUD are located in rural areas.
